Magazine's aim:

In 1934 the book Scientologie by A. Nordenholz was published. In the middle of the twentieth century the subject of Scientology was greatly expanded as a philosophy and technology by L. Ron Hubbard and a big band of helpers. This band coalesced into the Church of Scientology, which became a little secretive, restrictive, expensive and slightly destructive. From 1982 on, many left or were thrown out of that church, and continue to use and develop the philosophy and technology.

It is this large subject that International Viewpoints deals with, and it is our aim to promote communication within this field. We are independent of any group (sect). □

Towards a Bright Future

by Ulrich, Germany

"Well, son, glad to see you back! How was it down on old planet Earth this time? Any grand archaeological discoveries?"

Father settled back on his energy cushion that made it look as if he were levitating and looked at his son expectantly.

John simply said: "Just look at this!" and switched his 3D-holographic recorder on. A miniature scene appeared in the middle of the lounge. It showed an excavation site. Then a close-up of a decayed box containing electronic bits. A shrivelled hand clutching a couple of metal cylinders. Some thin whitish sheets with swirls on them.

"So?" said his father. "What's so exciting about that?"

"Well, don't you see, dad? That's wood! That box is made of wood!"

"No kidding! The last bit of wood I remember seeing was when my grandfather showed me a pre-historic match stick with a sulphur head. A family treasure. Stems from the times before we emigrated to Mars. That box there must be a good 2000 years old!"

"1787 years, to be precise. Almost 1800 years ago. By the time reckoning of that civilization it was the year 2250. The date appears on these sheets with swirls on them. Our experts managed to decipher the swirls. It's writing! On paper! By hand! No thought recording devices yet!"

"Congratulations, son, really a lucky strike! Did you dig that up yourself?"

"Yes I did, and I'm writing my doctor's thesis on it, too. From the other loose bits and paper stacks we found, we could tell that they had some strange cult then. There was a priesthood running the planet, the Church of the Holy Snake. Their emblem was two triangles with a snake winding through them. The same snake was used on the paper money they had then. Apparently they had elevated banking to a spiritual discipline. The priesthood was run by witches on a hereditary line. The first of their Grand Witches was called Muscaff, so they were named Musical-Witches since. Apparently there were heretic groups as well, working underground. The witches suppressed them."

"And what's all that got to do with this box?"

"It seems that they did some mental cleansing process by means of it. Had to do with re-arranging messed-up energy fields and dissonances. They tried to straighten out their fields. And they had to write it all up and give it to the priesthood. Some excavations show that people had accumulated up to twenty paper packs that way!"

"How primitive, isn't it?" Father shook his head in disbelief. "Talk about the 'good old days' — gee, am I glad to be living today! Imagine the poor sods back then — they had to use wooden boxes and paper to get straight! Thanks to Big Brother E.T. we have no need of that today — we take theta showers! Puts you all in the right and proper frame of mind. As it should be. No need to think thoughts any more, let alone dissonant ones."

"Right", said John. "Which reminds me — could I quickly take a theta shower? I feel a bit unsettled after this teleportation trip to home planet."

"Sure, go ahead — just one last question: What are these metal cylinders and how come this hand is so shrivelled up?"

"Well, as much as we know at this point they used these bits of tin pipe and the electronics in the boxes to create the field needed to pick up disturbances in their own field. That's the sort of engineering typical of the times before Big Brother E.T. bestowed his Superior Knowledge upon us." (At this point both reverently touched the scarcely visible antenna-knobs on their skulls.) "The shrivelled hand presents a bit of a mystery, though — apparently the guy imploded."

"Imploded?"

"Yes. They shrunk to death. We found many corpses in this condition, all dating back to pretty much the same time span. Apparently, after an initial boost of expansion, they went extinct. They exploded into the world and then they imploded. All of them! The Church of Snake as well as the heretics. My professor thinks the clue to it lies in the last words written on a sheet of paper next to the shrivelled hand. The writing suddenly breaks off after it says: 'Misunderstood words breed strange ideas'. It seems they misunderstood some basic concepts and instead of expanding further, they shrank to nothing as a movement and in the case of individual practitioners, they actually shrivelled up. An implosion effect."

"I don't get this", said father. "How can you ever misunderstand a word? Didn't they get all the right definitions beamed at them like we do? That's what one has a knob on one's skull for, after all!"

"Well, they didn't have those knobs then! At least we didn't find a trace of them on those mummies. They had to actually think thoughts then. Each their own thoughts!"

"Unthinkable!" gasped father.

"And imagine, in their days the word 'theta' meant something entirely different from today! Perhaps this is where the misunderstandings crept in that exterminated their culture. To them, 'theta' meant something like 'free thought'."

"That's preposterous!" snorted father. "Small wonder they didn't survive! 'Free thought' — what a notion!"

"Well, that isn't all there is to it yet. After wiping out the heretics the Muscaff-Witches decided to set themselves off from them and re-defined 'theta' to mean 'the end to advancement'. They even trademarked that definition. So the more they practiced their can-and-paper rituals the more they retrograded, shrunk and shrivelled up. As I said before, they died of mental implosion."

"By the knob on my skull!" growled father, "what a lot of nonsense! Since Big Brother E.T. we know what 'theta' means and there is no need to discuss the matter any further! Big Brother E.T. has given us the correct definition of it and there was no other definition before that nor will there be one ever after, and if anyone says so, it's a lie! You know as well as I do that 'theta' means Thought Elimination Technology Association, that it's the senior spiritual and administrative body in our society and that without it our civilization would crumble to bits."

"But ...", started Zonk.

"No buts! You have been doing too much thinking ever since you came back from that cursed planet, son. You'd better go and take your theta shower real quick now! And brush that knob on your skull, will you?"

Goals suggestions

By IVy's readers, in much of the world

Here are answers sent in to the question on goals, in IVy 14s questionnaire.: "What is your idea of a possible goal for the group?". We quote verbatim — in some cases answers refer to other answers .

To promote the role of Scn/Dn in society.

Wide application of Scn technology in the world.

Third dynamic togetherness and forming or renewing of ARC. Inspiration to use LRH's Techs. Knowledge and confirmation of us working towards a more advanced, non-physical, less troubled universe.

To expand the viewpoints of "independents" and create ARC between members.

Increased comm. and acceptance of differing forms of working.

Prime goal — to widen the horizons of members — plus other goals.

Communication to pool and advance all Knowledge, past and present.

Something akin to the (C of S) Mission network; groups of people meeting together on a regular basis at one another's homes to share ideas and use their knowledge of Tech to help one another, on a more or less informal and non-profit basis.

The primary goal should be to "survive and prosper as a group". A further goal would then be to research and expand the Tech.

A 6th dynamic goal widely acceptable to the public.

As 1 and 2. A new credibility for usable aspects.

Achieving a stable, defined, attainable upper bridge and making the whole bridge available to as many people as possible.

To increase readership.

To develop and maintain a free comm network on theta lines and grant beingness to all terminals.

To help all people to reach their goals.

To continue to pursue the freeing of theta and the encouragement of more ARC between members.

First dynamic clear for group individuals.

To put the tech into practical usage. Discuss separately.

Getting together and Bringing together.

UK — tech available on National Health Service: Abroad — something similar.

Getting each human being in touch with whatever tech is most immediately helpful to that human being.

Differentiate between purpose/goal — across all dynamics, then — find purpose and or goal for each group member across all dynamics.

Then help one another to achieve that.

The goal should be oriented towards growth. A strategy for the development of our service and training.

To clear the planet.

Expanded ARC in IVy and in "the world".

To offer oneself and to offer possible means to others for spiritual survival in this MEST universe.

Goal should be: spiritual freedom. Purpose: To inform on how and why the LRH auditing tech can be used to improve progress towards the goal.

Help oneself and others.

Perhaps better advice and guidance on what to choose for self-improvement; but who has the truth, let alone a comprehensive view?

The stated ones in "My Philosophy".

Create a club where people/auditors that use Scientology cleanly can exchange comm.

To stay in touch, be helpful, considerate — as a good beginning. Then time will show.

See my most recent article: we need an admin scale for Scientology.

Spiritual Enlightenment, resolution of the accumulation of the past incidents that one has gathered over millennia and is still carrying with one. (The symbol ¶ shows where the author started a new paragraph) First, dialogues (exchanges) on what the game and its goals should be. For me, to find and clarify "what I am up to", and to align my intentions and actions. ¶And to increase my capacity for pleasure in a wider range of experience. ¶For example, can I learn to be arrogant, or snivelling, or malevolent? To experience these kinds of beingnesses, as well as magnanimity or saintliness? ¶What I like the most is everyday application of scn. principles. My article "Release of backflow..." is a good example. ¶Generalities tend to turn me off. ¶Take any concept, "suppression", for example. To have a good grasp of what this is, I'd have to become aware of how it works in my daily life, and then handle it. How does it work against me? How can someone intimidate me, or get me to agree I'm a nobody nothing?

Professional application of our philosophy, co-operation, keeping ARC lines in and maybe promoting some common advancement.

A summation of what works — a better bridge.

Freedom, full OT, wow!!

Sharing: Joy, for one and all, clarity, acceptance and allowing.

Editorial note: answers in this sort of box are those we have not received from readers who possibly have not sent them in. Unfortunately we did not have space enough for all in that category. However, do not despair. There will be more space in future issues, so we would encourage those with further ideas for goals to send them in. They are a bit easier for others to understand if we get them and print them. In that form they are more likely to inspire others. It is also quite alright to send in more suggestions. Ed.

Green on Goals

By Stanley Green, England

I am primarily writing to congratulate you on two excellent articles in the November 1993 issue of IVy (No. 14), and in particular the article on Goals and IVy on p. 7.

Since the early 1980's when it became apparent that all was not well with the Church, and Independent movements began springing up around the world, we have watched with almost complete disbelief as groups subsequently fell apart, sometimes with an individual within the Group actively destroying it whilst maintaining how right they were in their actions.

In light of the above, could I suggest that the PRIMARY GOAL of the Group should be to "Survive and Prosper whilst maintaining the basic principles and Tech. of Scientology." Thus, any decline in the Group's prosperity or survival should be looked at very thoroughly and very quickly.

Other Goals

To me, a bit of a mess seems to have occurred in the "Upper Levels" with independents having gone off in different directions and with most claiming various degrees of success with their particular brand of Tech. Now the last thing I would want is someone trying to set a "Group" Goal along one of these particular directions. I think it is very important that any Group Goals must be general enough to be fully acceptable to ALL members of the Group.

Within the General Group there will obviously be numbers of individuals with further common goals, (eg, appraising different types of Meter, or looking into some aspect of the "Upper Levels") and providing such Goals do not run contrary to those of the Group as a whole, I see no reason why they should not pursue them, but under no circumstances should they be allowed to be put forward as the Group's Goals unless they are general enough to be fully acceptable to ALL members of the Group.

Whither, Scientology?

by Ulrich, Germany

Throwing an item like "let's find a goal for the group" into the arena of discussion (Antony in IVy 14) is, I think, a grand gesture. I should like to congratulate the editor on his courage.

Organisation is senior

As some specific points in Antony's article incited me to write this one, I shall actually quote him (without any intention to be critical though — by quoting him I am just indicating what sparked me off). He says: "We are strong to the degree we are in communication." This is true insofar enforced withholds will weaken the communication lines of a group. And that is the situation of free scientology indeed. But if there were no fear of the CofS and no withholds — would communication alone result in strength? I doubt it. Communication certainly would establish a certain level of ARC, but ARC, as we know, ranges between plus 40 and minus 40 on the tone scale. "ARC" doesn't mean that just because people communicate, they are nice to each other. An intense communication like the one observed in Yugoslavia over the past few years, for example, didn't result in a strengthening of the country but in its destruction.

Yet despite that and undaunted by it, any good scientologist will be positive that the ARC triangle, if handled with care, will help to raise a person on the tone scale. Fair enough. Now supposing one made plentiful communication happen between non-CofS scientologists, what would be the result? A friendly understanding. Granting of beingness. Mutual acceptance. And then what? Does this create strength by itself? It doesn't. But it helps. Because communication is the key ingredient to organisation and administration, to competence and KRC.

I could wholeheartedly agree to Antony's statement if it read: "We are strong to the degree we are organized." Because organization implies communication.

Are shamans auditors?

Next point: who is "we"? Antony's answer: "people who agree on some basic principles, which I regard as scientology." What basic principles, may I ask? What is it that makes a scientology auditor different from a psychologist, a shaman, a reiki healer? And indeed, referrals to psychotherapy, shamanism and "esoteric" healing techniques are not unfrequent in IVy. This is fine. There is nothing wrong with looking over the fence to see how the next guy grows his cabbage. But are the terms "auditing" and "scientology" still justified once "foreign elements" are incorporated in the application of the subject?

The philosophical and theoretical umbrella provided by scientology is so wide that pretty much anything under the sun can be explained with reference to it. Perhaps we cannot (as yet) teach our preclears to walk over hot lava or run spikes through their cheeks (standard feats at a jolly old shaman meeting), but we can at least, in terms of theory, explain what's happening there. Is shamanism scientology then? Are shaman healers auditors? If not — why not? What basic principles add up to what we regard as scientology? Much as the Axioms and Factors are a mode of describing and explaining spiritual phenomena, they are not "owned" by scientology. Hubbard found them, he did not invent them. You show them to a Hawaiian Huna healer and he'll just yawn and say, "well I knew that all along". So please: what is it that makes auditors different from other practitioners?

Clearing the planet

Then Antony refers to an entity he calls "the group". He wonders if "we as a group, those interested in LRH's philosophy and tech, have a common goal now" and reminds us of the old battle-cry of "Clear the Planet!", a group amalgamation device he thinks has gone stale with excessive use. Stale? Well, quite! After all, it's a rather ancient one. Not a novel idea at all and certainly not a prerogative of the CofS or other Hubbard-disciples. Since old Gautama Buddha made up his mind "to relieve all sentient beings from suffering", clearing the planet has been the favourite pastime of many religions large and small — just witness Roman Catholicism, Islam and the American Way of Life. Even Maharishi's Transcendental Meditation movement boasts a Spiritual World Government! Therefore, stale or not, those who are into clearing the planet live in a fairly classy neighbourhood, even if the CofS happened to be located across the street.

If scientology were to reduce its aspirations to merely becoming a "nice therapy", it would lose its spirit and be licked for good. Isn't it a degrading thing for an upright thetan to need auditing at all? A good lot of TR-0 should do the job! That it doesn't, should be no reason to introvert into the case-handling aspects of scientology. There's more to be had: admin and ethics know-how.

Who is "free scientology"?

Now, is there such a "group" at all? I can't see it. 14 issues of IVy have evidenced the fact that "free scientology" is not carried forward by a unified or homogeneous group but consists of many separate ones. Some of them wouldn't even dare admit they are using scientology. Of course, one can't write that word on one's shingle¹ these days, for legal reasons, but at least to the people in one's shop one can refer to one's sources. However, this is not always done. So where is this group the spirits of which Antony wishes to evoke and address?

A group is defined by the game it agrees on, its game again by its admin scale: goals, purposes, rules, procedures, ideal scenes, statistics, products. Does the CofS have an admin scale beyond that of the imperialistic expansion of their imagined monopoly? Do they have an admin scale with regard to scientology itself? Does anyone else have one? I wonder.

Those who were breastfed in the CofS got it with each gulp until it penetrated their system to the last fiber: "Thou shalt not do anything that isn't written by LRH." Period. End of admin scale. Now that some of us are weaned off, a process that took a good ten years, we seem to look around wondering what to do with our freedom. Scientology obviously is more than what LRH concentrated upon during his lifetime; in terms of procedures and results he certainly never exhausted the potential of his own brain child. Only doing what he wrote would set unpermissible limits, we know that — but without any limits, where will Scientology wind up?

So what's the admin scale of, for example, the Ron's Orgs with regard to scientology? Of the Clearing Institute? Of Dianasis? Of the AAC? What about the individual non-aligned practitioners? What goals do they set for scientology? What purposes do they connect with its application? What policies govern their auditing procedures? What ideal scene do they envision for the subject? Not for their pcs, for the subject!

Restoring life

If one really wanted to "restore life to Free Scientology as a group", free scientologists would need to get together and form an agreement on what they mean when they say "scientology". One would need to do something that neither the CofS nor Ron himself ever did, and that is to work out an admin scale all those who would call themselves "Hubbard Practitioners" could agree to follow. And once one had done that, one could go further and agree on training qualifications and certification of auditors, one could agree on the basic rudiments of a bridge and on the attestation of states such as Clear. One could demonstrate that scientology works in all cases of mental disability and psychosomatic illness and thereby establish the credibility of scientology by actual result — instead of by enforcing such agreement by heavy promotional campaigns.

Then, only then, would Free Scientology be truly independent of the CofS. Because even after 10 years of independence from the CofS a Class IV auditor (let alone a Class VIII) is respected for his title. Free Scientology has not created the equivalent training qualifications yet. This, although it may sound utopic to some, wouldn't but put scientology on equal footing with most professional disciplines such as medicine, physics, law, etc. Free Scientology would finally have an entry point to the professional community and see the end of its shadow existence.

Scientology fashionable

The CofS is here to stay. Don't let yourself be fooled by the press. Just look at the actual product of such slander: scientology has become a household word now. You think people are terrified? Perhaps. But they know as well that VIPs, TV personalities and film stars are CofS clients. That's good PR for the CofS. Each bit of "bad press" has promotional value.

Consider some recent events: in 1917, certain big powers in the US established communism in Russia (that's historical fact). After that, communism was slipped into various countries by the CIA; concurrently it was "controversially discussed" in the papers all over the world. They went on and on about how terrible communism was. With the result that so much interest was created in communism that, in the 60's, pretty much every intellectual in Europe was of communist or "socialist" persuasion! How come? Well, because the very powers that make big politics own the press! (Historical fact, too.) Regarding scientology, the story is going to be no different. During Ron's times, they tried to suppress it and didn't succeed. Then Ron was made invisible, eliminated, neutralized. A new management came on and after a few fairly quiet years the press started to go wild on the subject of scientology. Why? Because the same big powers still own the press! That they discuss scientology "controversially" with such heat smacks of an attempt to establish it real good and solid — CofS style, of course. You bet: in ten years' time it will be just as fashionable to be a scientologist as it was once fashionable to be a Marxist.

And for that reason it would be unwise for independent scientologists to go about their business like each rabbit taking care of his own hole only. If they have it in their minds to out balance the CofS and preserve the value of Ron's teachings in the future, they must get organized — KRC, admin scale, ethics conditions, all those "hateful" things. And although it's a truism that all organizations sooner or later will get infiltrated and usurped, that shouldn't keep one from trying. Ron tried. No matter what one may think of the CofS in retrospect — if Ron hadn't set it up, we wouldn't be here.

How to beat Rothschild

Only getting organised saved Ron from being wiped off the table by the big powers that tried. Since Nathan Rothschild took possession of the Bank of England in 1815, this planet has been running on his steam alone. Rothschild created the Illuminati, the Rockefellers, the Federal Reserve System, the UN, the World Bank and the Food and Drug Administration. The world is managed by secret lodges commanding vast amounts of money. In the teeth of that LRH built his CofS and within twenty years established it all around the planet. Within twenty years! If that isn't a feat I don't know what a feat is.

And how did he do it? He formed a secret lodge (the Advanced Orgs with their OT levels) and made it make money, make money, make money. He used the exact same method as Nathan Rothschild's father who had Adam Weishaupt form the Illuminati in 1776 and made this lodge infiltrate the administrative systems of the rich and the powerful.

Against all that, Ron made it. Certainly, it may have been harsh on some — but there is no reason for them to bewail their fate and deplore their past. They should look at the final product of their labour. Thanks to their efforts, scientology is there. And it's KRC that did it. ARC alone wouldn't have sufficed.

Now a group goal is a very necessary thing if your group is going to get interested and go forward. A person's cause is motivated by future. Motivation is in the future. L. Ron Hubbard, PDC 40, 1952.

From 1960 to 1962 I developed a lot of technology about goals and purposes. ... The African ACC was devoted to this subject. Lots of data exist on it. L. Ron Hubbard, HCO PL 6 Dec 1970, "Third Dynamic De-aberration".

Goals and IVy — 2¹

By Antony A Phillips, Denmark

We have had a very nice response to the request "What are your ideas for possible goals for the group?" Most of those received so far are printed in this issue.

In the first article I tried to make the thing simple. The question "are we a group?" is pertinent. Actually I was thinking of all who read IVy plus the many who would do so if it wasn't for language problems, ignorance of IVy's existence or other things. Perhaps all in that group have a common goal in the direction of: to help by using some of the legacy from LRH.

But within that larger group we have many smaller groups. Geography can put us in one of these smaller group, language can, and definitely interests can ("I like research", "I am interested in auditing ladies who want to run a Woman's Institute better").

Power of goals

I have no doubt about the power of goals. If you have, I suggest you listen to what Ron says and writes, including PDC lecture number 40. To paraphrase the beginning of that lecture: If you start doing things without first getting a very clear idea of what you want to achieve, you end in a mess, brother.

Have you heard the story of the person who wanted to live in a room with a good view. She did. In a nursing home, crippled, and practically chained to her chair.

Have you heard of the church that was going to clear the world? Present state of the game: much of the world it is going to clear is very antagonistic to that church, despite their claim to be experts in PR. My guess is that members of that group were not sufficiently specific in setting their goals — or there are 1.1s there who have set different goals.

Visualisation — ideal scene

Whoops! Visualisation is a non scientology word. Shame on me for using it. However there is a good deal of useful, relevant, literature on visualisation. Visualisation and other ideas in the alternate world can help us understand postulates and shake ourselves free of any fixed ideas we might have picked up on the subject. And for my money Visualisation is a very good way of making an ideal scene, which is a very good way of postulating.

Postulates are pretty basic. You see them first in axiom 2. I have found very little in scn on how you postulate. Perhaps that is a good thing. In a complex world postulating can be complex. Some postulates "don't work" because they go directly against other postulates.

It is possible that postulates also got a bad name by false interpretations of what postulates are, possibly made by a well respected person. They look like the road to all desirable, and so they are — in your own universe if there are no forgotten counterpostulates lying around. But we are together in the physical universe and we want something pleasant to happen here.

So why not establish (or re-establish) contact with the "sub-group" you feel most attracted to and get a little goal forming activity going. What goals can you agree on. And what are the ideal scenes associated with the achievement of those goals. In detail.

Remember: If you start doing things without first getting a very clear idea of what you want to achieve, you end up in a mess, brother.

So lets get really detailed. What do you want to happen? In the area you regard as yours, what is the ideal?

Reaction to "Goals and IVy" in IVy 14

By Nellie Bosma, Holland

I will keep my reaction a short one. You mention the goal "To clear the planet by 1984". Drawing on the column by Mark Jones (see under the heading: "The climax .. control vs. receiving"), I gather this goal was formulated in 1982/83¹. This would mean that the goal was meant to be reached within one year. To me this looks rather like a pc who would say: "I will be clear by tomorrow 9 pm." Considering all the time that has gone by before we were where we are now (in terms of power lost, consciousness lost, mass accumulated etc.) it will probably take somewhat longer than a year to "Clear the planet". But that doesn't mean that the goal in itself is unrealistic, as you seem to say in your second footnote. It's just the time-tag attached to it that makes it seem that way. To me the goal of clearing the planet (to begin with yourself of course, although the two aren't really separate) is still a very valuable and worthwhile one. There is no need to abandon this goal. In fact, I think that everyone who ever felt attracted to the concepts presented in Dianetics or Scientology, if he or she would look into their hearts, will still find it there.

There are a lot of confusions about the implementation of the goal — how to go about it, which is the "right" way, which way is "wrong" — which have made it seem like it will always be the same: an eternal struggle in which we will never be able to reach it. I believe there are no "right" or "wrong" ways, only different ones — as long as the goal is the same. And I do not believe that we will never reach it. Of course, I do have doubts and get confused, afraid, angry or frustrated at times, but I also do believe we will get there in the end.

In fact, I believe there never has been another goal — and there never will be for that matter — for beings that want to help make this Earth a safer place, a place of trust and openness instead of distrust and power. Which is just another way of saying: to clear the planet.

Introduction of Energetics to Past Scientologists.

By Nikolay Brovcenko, Australia

I am quite often called to explain what Energetic is and how it functions.

Simplicity

Really, it is simplicity in itself, it has no grades; it does not require a meter to confuse the issue; it does not require bridges to cross over or under. It is a quiet miracle worker. It can be done with a master assisting you, or you can do it yourself after some intensive study, or assisted by a fellow student. Performance increases dramatically with assistance by another being, because you can concentrate on just running the necessary bits, and do not have to think about the methodology. A trained partner is most valuable. The one that observes; the one that listens, the one that does not chop your communication to pieces; the one that acknowledges your communication, the one that does not evaluate or invalidate, the one that is there all the way with you is the most valued assistant.

Energetic the methodology

Energetic actually is a methodology capable of performing small miracles. It is largely dependent on your desires, what one wishes to achieve or unshackle oneself from, maybe some horrible automatic action that you no longer desire.

You see Energetic is there to assist you to help yourself, not the other way around. Energetic has very few rules and basics, but it does require your full participation and willingness to achieve whatever you desire. Energetic deals with the spiritual side of the composite nature of man, the side that is forever creating. However the creations are created to some past pattern that does not belong to the present time and is in fact a dramatization of some past happening or solution to the very distant problem.

Origins Of Energetic

The basics of Energetic were discovered while in Scientology. It does have similarities to Scientology. By the way Energetic is in no way in competition with Scientology, or condones Scientology. At the same time there is no attempt made to invalidate or in any way to divert one from Scientology. Energetic stands as itself with its own basics and its own methodology. If you recognize some part that you came across before in Scientology, please recognize it as such. It is a bit of a coincidence, keep in mind that it is used from a different point of view, different basics and it works differently.

Design of Energetic

To design Energetics the author had to start with brand new basic assumptions. Here was an ocean of data and every bit appeared important. The decision had to be made what was basic and what was not important. Basics were kept and the rest tossed away as unnecessary bits on the voyage. I have seen too many people proceeding on wrong, but likely assumptions, finishing up heading in an entirely different direction to what they started on. Just as an example, if one considers say, the data of Scientology as a room full of pages, an attempt was made to reduce the data to half the room, then to quarter of the room, followed by a small corner of the room and then down to a few pages. These few pages, comprise the Energetics materials, they include the basics discovered on the way. There were lots of discoveries made by pure cognitions and realisations that came from the basics. The basics were further consolidated and an alignment was established on much firmer lines.

Technology Should Get Simpler

As LRH said the technology, if it is worth its salt, should get simpler not more complicated. Energetic is based on this principle and one can soon discover it by attending the basic course.

No evaluation or invalidation

Energetic does not evaluate for you, even one little bit, there are no assessments to establish where you are on some arbitrary scale. You know where you are, and Energetic picks you up from the point where you are at. There are no other persons to tell you what to run on your client. The information flows freely between the client (PC) and the assistant (Auditor). The roles are quite reversed, you as an assistant are only assisting the Client. The Client is the Cause in the session.

In Energetic you don't have to jump through so many hoops (grades) to achieve what you really desire. Energetic does not attempt to make you equal to your neighbour, or make you similar.

Recognition of creative cause

Energetic recognizes the individual nature of every being in existence and treats it that way. Energetic does not require you to be coached by some one else, you just study your materials and do your exercises with another being present, but the training is very individual. You do discuss your views and opinions with your partner, for sure, but from the point of view of you as cause, what you observed about yourself as cause not an effect and not as a critique of your partner. There is no evaluation.

The discussion takes the form of: I observed just about every motion that was happening with your body, but I found myself drifting over into my own thoughts instead of observing you. Or: I was sitting there trying to observe myself and found that I could not concentrate on that because the thoughts were buzzing in my head like flies, and most predominant thought there was about my (difficulty). Energetic does not use Scientology jargon. There are few new terms introduced but they are self explanatory or pretty close to it.

No endless word clearing

There is no endless word clearing as the words used are common garden variety words. Energetic is used to assist another being on the basis of just a simple communication, just as in the early days of Scientology LRH used to say that a test of a really hot shot auditor should be, put PC in session and get very good results with just a comm. line and no other gadgets present in the session. In some cases people are not even aware of (being processed) if you like, they accept it as just ordinary communication and then wonder why they feel better or something nice happened to them.

Creativity and causation

The creative and causative nature of a being is recognized and questions are designed in such a way as to point this out to the being. Also there are no rote questions in Energetic, one has to instantly create questions to suit the occasion and matter in hand. Past scientologists have been so indoctrinated into "standardness", they keep looking and asking for rote commands, session tapes or demo tapes. Any difficulty is mainly caused by not studying the Basics of Energetic or going through the Exercises. In other words, wanting to run before learning to crawl.

If You Are Not Convinced

If any of the above does not convince you of the sincerity and effectiveness of Energetics and and that there is no alignment to Scientology, despite the similarity between the two, consider this. It is well known that one make of car does not equal another make of car. I have experienced both and found that Energetics leaves everything else for standing. The best way to dispel the doubt is to do the Basic course which takes about 36 hrs to complete. One gets to discover what the Basics of Energetics are, why and how they are used. How to go about using the Basics and Exercises necessary to accomplish the required finesse and polish to bring about the small miracles that can be achieved with Energetics.

Modern look at the ancient being Energetics methodology is an advanced and modern way of looking at the ancient being connected to its modern model of a body. Each one is a separate entity and needs separate handling. Even though they run and seem to be on one path, there are distinct and separate individual incidents for each, that respond to different treatments. However the methodology is the same, the basics still apply no matter what.

Co-operative unit

Best results are produced with Energetics when a person is assisted by another person of comparable training and compatibility. To that end Co-operative units are established, where the students can assist each other to get faster and more tremendous results based on what they want to achieve. Also it provides a common ground for further discussions and sharing of experiences.

Enid Vien

The following is an extract from a communication that Enid sent out the 24th January 1994. Her address is at the end, and you are very welcome to contact her for more data and the full document. Enid is being attacked legally by the church and welcomes all kinds of support. A fuller letter from Enid, details of the legal case (which at the moment Enid has lost) and amplifying comments, appear in the current issue of The Free Spirit. Ed.

For most of you in the Church of Scientology Ron was your teacher, guru, leader and Commanding Officer. To me he was my dear friend and comrade!

All our correspondence was secret because he needed people in the field to keep him informed of what was going on. In the 70's I telexed him to let him know that the orgs were upsetting people in droves with postulate checks and crash regging. It was promptly stopped. Those responsible were disciplined.

When in 1981 I became nervous of the activity in the Mission Network, I sent him the usual telegram, I had no reply, I became nervous and suspicious, especially when I received a letter from the LRH "You can always write to me" line which was not signed or answered in his style by someone who obviously did not know who I was.

In 1982 I resigned, convinced that Ron had been taken out of the game by those who did not understand the real game.

My instructions and agreement with Ron were that I would wait until I saw that the Church was stagnating or becoming a cult where he was deified and go public.

I am now doing that.

He gave me, and several others who I do not know, the task of planetary ethics and research.

He also stated that I should make this public only if I felt the time was right or I became compromised by attack by the Church, and then only after long consideration.

The time is now!

All persons who consider themselves Scientologists or Ex-Scientologists (Expanded Scientologists) are hereby offered founding membership in the International Association of Dynamists for a nominal donation, regardless of past offences committed before today against the field, Scientology, Ron or the spiritual progress of mankind.

What's it All About, Alfie?¹

Ray Harman², Australia

"... and behold, the Lord passed by, and a great and strong wind rent the mountains and broke in pieces the rocks before the Lord: but the Lord was not in the wind: and after the wind an earthquake; but the Lord was not in the earthquake: and after the earthquake a fire: but the Lord was not in the fire: and after the fire a still, small voice ..." 1 Kings 19:11-12

I suppose many people these days live and work and die and never give thought to the seventh and eighth dynamics, but the world is crammed full of people both now and throughout history who do. There's thee and me for a start. Until lately the results have often not been very good. Trouble is, people like to follow leaders and so we have many different groups, and many of these think that they are divinely inspired and everyone else is wrong, damned wrong. So we have wars like the Crusades, and Hindus tearing down Moslem mosques, and the CofS issuing lawsuits, all in the name of God and LRH. At least the Buddhists are a step further advanced and don't use violence to achieve their advancement.

It is in man's nature to follow a great leader. Whether he be religious or secular, a convincing leader is followed unthinkingly by many. How big would Martin Luther King's following be by now had he not been assassinated? Where would Germany be today if Adolf Hitler had used Trade instead of War to advance his country's cause?

Seeking God

Following a great leader is a route to meet God, that's the motivation, knowingly or unknowingly. And a great many still follow Christ and Mahomet and LRH and so forth. Some leaders are quite successful while others are flawed, and so we see WW2, the Jonestown mass suicide, the Iron Curtain and the siege at Waco, Texas.

Some seek God through nature, the physical universe. This route is called Nature Mysticism. Here we have the physicist smashing atoms to discover, hopefully, how God created the universe. The bushwalker, the surfer, and the gardener are in this category. So are the Greenpeace mob³. They are sometimes militant, due to the emergency situation they are trying to handle, but luckily they have the sanity to not use guns to achieve their objectives. Experiencing drugs or sex or alcohol is another variation of the Nature Mysticism route, but unless this one is structured it is dangerous in that it can easily degenerate into degradation and take the seeker in the wrong direction totally.

All these different groups are actually fellow travellers, but they tend to suffer from the trap of specialisation, and lack a view from a height⁴ — to see what they are doing and where they are going in perspective — from an exterior viewpoint.

Our position

After all the thinking men have gone before us we find ourselves in present time in the vanguard of the mystical research which is happening at hitherto unheard of rates of progress. The goal is to advance spiritually, eliminate the subconscious, be free of entrapment in the body, to love one's fellow man, and to know ourselves, which is to know God, as there is a little bit of God in each of us. This is the first dynamic goal. I suppose many average Christian or Moslem footsoldiers may not see beyond living according to the law and finally having a cup of tea with God and being told, Well Done. The fourth dynamic goal is higher — to love your fellow man and to communicate with him such that eventually the Jew may love the Arab and the Hindu may call the Moslem his brother; that is, to Clear the planet.

The CofS's goal to clear the Planet didn't happen, so the KSW¹ policy, at least, was wrong. It denied a view from a height. But LRH was right to say that a man is as valuable as he can serve his fellow man.

So, my valuable friends, follow your own mystical route to God. Carry out your research diligently, and continue to do so, so long as you can see that you are moving in the right direction. To know this you must maintain a view from a height. And communicate! Write up your methods and results, and publish them in IVy!

Church tax exemption

We normally leave it to our sister paper, The Free Spirit, to report on legal, as they are better able to do it. As an exception here is a report from a couple of American newspapers last October which we have extracted from the November 1993 issue of Cult Awareness Network News. Ed.

Scientology granted tax exemption — IRS records show assets of $400 million

The federal government last month granted a tax-exemption to the Church of Scientology International and thirty or more church-related entities, after years of litigation which has cost tax-payers millions over the last decades.

As part of the settlement Scientologists may now deduct dues from their taxes. No refunds are due the church as none have been assessed for many of the years in question, and none paid.

Documents Scientology was required to file with the IRS in applying for the tax-exemption included financial disclosures that Scientology counts assets of $400 million, and appears to take in nearly $300 million a year from counselling fees, book sales, investments and other sources. The documents, eight cardboard boxes worth, reveal Scientology spends heavily on legal fees, advertising and commissions of 10 percent to certain fund raisers, called field staff members, or disseminators, rather than church employees. One such found raiser, Ken Pirak, made $407,052 in 1991, according to the documents, and another, Steve Grant, worked the Clearwater, Fla. area in 1991 and made $339,978.

Some of the more unusual church expenditures include $7 million for bomb-resistant doors for one of three vaults in which the writings of Scientology's now deceased founder, L. Ron Hubbard, are to be stored, and $114 million to preserve the writings and tapes of Hubbard. Another $6 million was spent for an advertising campaign in USA Today in 1991. The campaign ran in response to a hard-hitting cover story in the May 6, 1991 issue of TIME magazine, "Scientology: The Cult of Greed," by Richard Behar. Scientology leader David Miscavige reportedly was paid $62,683.50 and his wife Michele received $31,359.25 in income in 1991.

(From "Scientologists report assets of $400 million" by Robert D. Hershey, Jr., The New York Times, Oct. 22, 1993, p. A-12; a New York Times wire story which appeared in The Chicago Tribune Oct. 14, 1993 under the headline "Scientology granted tax exemptions.")

Report on Free Zone Convention — November 12th to November 14th 1993

By John Donaldson England

This year's International Convention took place in the centre of the historic city of Lyons where the 2 major rivers of Southern France (the Rhone and the Soane) converge. This was a fitting choice as the theme of the Convention was "Synergie" (the combining of disparate talents and abilities to achieve a greater whole.)

Attendees came from all over the world including Brazil, United States and Australia and from the major European countries.

There was of course a programme of speakers on major topics but in addition there were slots for people to report informally on their particular projects. As always one is surprised at the wide range of activities that able beings get involved in, to improve conditions on this planet.

The lectures covered such topics as:-

New learning technologies (a very interesting way of using "Superlearning" which makes learning actually fun and can be applied to training auditors), Stars and Galaxies, predictions for the next 20 years, applying tech in your personal life, new assists for handling the body organisation, using tech in running a business and other interesting topics.

The material pleasures of eating and drinking were given adequate time and attention and many entertainments and surprises were laid on. These included games, music and other artistic contributions. The music of Bill Robertson which was played during the weekend is now available on compact disc or audio cassette. (If you would like more information please contact Maria Maloney, c/o Groothius, 35 Lingfield Road, East Grinstead, West Sussex, England.

There was a wide range of publications and other tools for spiritual advancement on display and for sale (including IVy!)

Next year's convention will take place in Southern Germany and it is hoped that many more IVy readers will be able to attend.

Listing

By Flemming Funch, USA¹

Despite having gotten good results with listing and nulling from time to time, I haven't been very keen on doing stuff like that in the last few years. It seemed to me that there are less risky ways of getting the same benefits. But, it might be in order to examine the subject.

First of all, the idea of listing pre-supposes that there are charged questions that each have one and only one dominant answer which will produce a significant relief when found and indicated. The idea is that the listing process would bypass the general garbage in the bank and go straight for the item that is causing the trouble.

LRH didn't shed much light on why that would be so. Particularly why some seemingly invalid questions would work, such as "What place have you known?" on Power Plus. Or, a 3S&D type "Who or what has attempted to make nothing of you?". To me it seems like those questions should have a great many good answers.

It might be that L&N works by just finding a the first real good answer that BDs well. Even though there might be more good answers. But that sort of collides with the whole ritual of L&N that all gives the heavy suggestion that there is one and only one answer and we indicate the item found as the item.

Wrong Indications

The trouble with presenting anything as the answer is that it very easily leads to wrong indications. The validity of the question/answer combination is entirely dependent on the viewpoint and context they are applied to. Even if the answer seems right from a certain viewpoint, at a certain point in time, as applied to a very specific context, then it is likely to be totally wrong seen from many other viewpoints, or at other times, applied to other contexts.

If the viewpoint and context is explicitly specified, then it would probably be alright. Or, if we just let whatever pops up as-is without evaluating that it is the person's item.

If you tell somebody that "YOUR ITEM IS ___!", then the person will necessarily generalize it somewhat. The word "YOU" will tend to attach it to the person's identity to some degree. It associates YOU with the item. And since any mention of time or place is left out, it would tend to be generalized to a much wider context.

As-is-ness

Finding an item would generally produce an as-is-ness. It does so by hitting on the exact consideration related to the given mass. The thing is that when it as-ises it disappears. Even if it WAS a valid statement of the exact consideration, then it no longer is after it has been found. So, the indication that it is your item can't be anything but a lie at the time it is given.

Assuming then that there is such a thing as one exact consideration for a specified mass, then the end point would be the as-is-ness of that consideration, which should be accompanied by the disappearance of the mass. After that there would be no point in evaluating anything whatsoever about the item found.

Another problem about listing is that questions and answers are stated in language. By the nature of language and words, any question will be ambiguous and unclear. Any statements the person gives as answers are likely to be only imprecise approximations of the actual answers. No combination of words can aberrate a person in themselves, they can only be an approximated representation of what really goes on.

Other Methods

When I do listing, for example to find a service fac in a given area, I would usually do it in a 2WC style. I don't find that most pcs would dig very deep on their own. But with somebody to guide them along, and corner them so they have to come up with the consideration, then they can get a much better item.

In the type of valence handling I mostly do, polarity clearing, I would avoid L&N at all costs. I find it more valuable to get something general that the pc is using throughout his life and that he will really have to take responsibility for.

So, are there really situations where the best choice is to get a really specific one-shot answer to produce an as-isness? I believe there is when we are talking considerations, postulates, intentions, computations. Finding the right consideration would generally produce a big change right away and avoid a lot of time being spent messing around with less significant side-effects.

Probably the direct search for considerations could be expanded into more ways than it has traditionally been used. It is basically going for the meaning behind the structure behind the appearance. The context must be very well defined in order to search effectively for the consideration. The consideration might be expressed in words or it might not, what matters is the conceptual idea that it is.

A valence is much more of a structure. I would still not consider it wise to regard that as any kind of exact consideration. If it is the simplicity of a viewpoint it might work, but I think a more complex identity is risky to find this way. But there would probably be an exact consideration that would keep one involved with a certain identity, and that could be listed for.

Listing is akin to Date/Locate in that we try to duplicate a specific. When we get a close enough duplication we get an as-isness and an instant change.

Buy one another

Look, how many times do you go to the Yellow Pages and look up a plumber or musician or photographer or accountant or whatever?

"Flow power to a power," said L. Ron Hubbard. He also had a blazer badge that I spotted in HASI London in 1958 with the motto clear and sure: "Help one another".

Let us Independents help one another in everyday things as well as in auditing and training. For the recession still has not lifted from Britain. It is at work again on the European mainland. But surely we can help one another? I had this idea after contacting an Independent, and I realised I hadn't really mentioned to the person what my skills are, what I might do to help that individual's business.

Musician

Suppose I plan a function for a Saturday a few weeks ahead, and I want a pianist. Fine: good old Yellow Pages. And a musician who is a total stranger, even if he might be a good fellow. Money in his pocket. All right. Yet why not consider using an Independent who is a pianist and give him or her the job?

Help one another. Flow power to power.

How can it be made practicable? My computer database contains quite a few names and addresses of Independents, built up in connection with conferences. Held securely, I might add. Tell me what you do. The skills and so forth that you would offer other Independents.

I will produce a list of names, addresses and services on offer. There will be no fee: all I shall ask is that, along with the information sent to me, a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. If someone wants to be really friendly, enclose a few blank sheets of A4 size paper.

Then the list will be circulated to all respondents — potentially, everyone on my mailing list. Then it is up to people to make their choice.

Next time I need a musician for a function...I'll certainly consider my good friend at Loughborough and, if he can deliver what is needed and wanted, at an agreeable price, power will help power, in each direction. Next time Joe in Eastbourne needs a motor mechanic: "Hey! There is an Independent on Terry's list who specializes in Volvo! Great — I shall talk to him". Joe would get the services of a mechanic who is likely to be more ethical than average, more in present time than average, more etcetera than average.

Kemp's Column

By Raymond Kemp, USA

The way things were — and are?

Every now and then I get the idea for a story, an article or even a book by concocting an opening line and I recently thought: What if the National Enquirer, or some other 'scandal sheet' paper came out with the headline:

L. Ron Hubbard returns. Five year old child in Bombay claims to be the reincarnation of the founder of Scientology.

Apart from the obvious confusion this would raise, it also led me to wonder what he would teach this time round, and that led me to take an inventory of what he did teach over the years, categorized as systems of help for fellow humans.

Forty two years ago, when I was just beginning to practice what L. Ron Hubbard was teaching, I and others were willing to take on any area of society that we observed could use some help. We were I guess, pioneers, full of confidence, and enthusiasm, and the miracles that were produced were accepted by us as "that is what is supposed to happen".

Today I observe that most practitioners are mainly concerned with "Becoming OT", or inventing new tech, or trying to put together a group (often in order to demonstrate that Ron didn't have it all, or even that Ron was wrong and we are right).

I see a plethora¹ of groups and isms, each trying, and it seems desperately sometimes, to get people to join, because "this is the way".

In all fairness the current holders of the Scientology Organisation do exactly that, in fact they may even have started it, but be that as it may, there is a definite thrust to "Join", to "Try it my way".

Of course society has changed, three new generations have risen, each with their own alteration of standards and mores, and I wonder what might have happened if LRH had started Dianetics in 1990. Would it have spread so fast? Would it have been the same? I do not know.

Clearing Procedures.

Yes, they exist now and are totally workable when done ... Trouble is that no sooner was this achieved than alterisnes came in and new solutions to inaccurate performance was installed.

Dianetic principles in hospitals, emergency operations and childbirth ... this is being used fairly broadly in some manner or other by many hospitals.

But what else did we use 'back then'?

And the list can go on and on. ARC Break theory and handling, granting of beingness, KRC, withholds and missed withholds, overt act / motivator sequence (Tonya Harding vs. Nancy Kerrigan?), DED/DEdEx, havingness and so forth. All these were in daily use by the auditors of old, and everything worked as predicted when done.

These were the tools of the trade for anyone who wanted to help his fellow man. They didn't have to be church members, or go to ethics for clearance to do these things. There was no penalty if you screwed up, only sometimes a stern warning to get it right next time, followed by some advice on how to correct the errors you had made.

As a result, the profession of a scientologist was a joyous one. We were proud of what we were able to do. There was no mystery about it, no ulterior motive, no watching for the enemy. To quote, "We had met the enemy, and it was us", so we decided peace and went on doing what we enjoyed doing.

I believe that if everyone in the field of help, including those who are currently regimented by religious codes and orders, simply took the tools and started on helping their fellow, and did not dwell so heavily on "Getting off the continuous cycle of birth and rebirth", or OT, or "trying to solve the mysteries of life," then everyone would be better off.

Show that help is possible

Show people that help is real, and is available, repair their lives, and set them on the road to clear, and they will recognise the help, and, when ready, will want to go clear. You can help them. The tools exist and are not only for the elite.

DUGA — how it didn't start

Editors Note: I have been quite impressed by the group, DUGA, which Todde has built up. There are not that many members, but most have been with it for some years, and have diligently worked their way up from almost nothing to being trained philosophers and sorting out confusions in their lives (= bringing order on their dynamics). At various times he has told me of various principles he used, and I felt his ideas and experience would be valuable to others, both as good ideas, and as things which did not work and should perhaps be avoided or done differently. Therefore I have been pressuring him for some months to write it up so we could publish it. Last IVy's Philosophical Viewpoints was the start (I was surprised at the way it was written). Now comes the following letter (edited slightly) which explains his dilemma. Whether it explains anything else, you must read it to find out. If it raises questions, please send them.

I would very much like to write about how DUGA got started and the whys behind it being what it is, with the purpose of trying to teach others what I have done.

The reason I haven't done this is that I am starting to realize that I am not able to write it at all. What I am trying to say is that I have actually tried to do just that (make a "hat write-up") with the members of DUGA for 10 years already and so far I have not really been successful enough to feel that I have accomplished this goal. By now I have learned that I must teach by "internships" as well as by performing by example and by hand-holding etc., etc.

There's a lot of teaching that I am doing that (as far as I can see) is basically impossible to get across only by written words. There is a "doingness teaching" that I have learned the hard way that I am not able to get across by communicating by words alone. So my efforts to "teach the successful actions of DUGA" by writing have been given up. I know I cannot do it. I was helped to realize that by being asked to do it. I have started and tried to, but I know it is not enough. Nobody will ever be able to duplicate what I have done by only reading. I will refuse to give myself a failed purpose by trying. I have realized I cannot do it and that ends that cycle of action as far as I am concerned.

Cycles of action are needed to do DUGA

Well ... that is exactly what DUGA is all about. To try to teach the students to DO DUGA!

The article I wrote, "Before starting DUGA" (IVy 15 page 25), is what I wrote on impulse when I had failed to do the "hat write-up". It is everything I did not really want to write. I have not censored it to remove my 1D pride from it. It probably does not teach anybody much of anything. But when I was asked to write something on the subject, this was the result.

I do feel that I have unique ideas about "How to run a 'road to truth' group". "Not meditating anybody that has not had at least theory training on the level before getting into session on that level" is one such unique idea. Another is to not sell any solo route, but only training routes to OT. As far as I am concerned, the solo route to OT does not work. It does at times create a keyed-out OT, but most often not even that.

However, we do have ex-SCNists in our group and always have had. What we did do was that, once the group was started, we disconnected from everything that had any connection with the Cof$ including all individuals on Cof$ lines.

 Regular column— Philosophical Viewpoints

If somebody approached us from the Cof$ we considered them to be PTS until they had disconnected fully (being declared preferably, but at least asking for refund of all money paid and not used in the Cof$.)

Another successful unique thing is that we communicate with ARC at all times (try to at least.) This means a new student Meditor¹ has an old experienced Meditor by his side when he is delivering meditation of processes he has not yet mastered professionally. This particular unique idea is a real why behind our success in training. We have, so far, nobody who has stopped delivering Meditation that once started. (There are about a dozen Meditors that we have trained so far.) That is KRC triangle applied

We have a new Comm Course drill (TR 5) that we use whenever ARC goes down between 2 people (or more). We even use it when a Meditor/PreMeditor relationship goes sour. And we solve all "case problems" by making sure the person continues forwards on our "Road to Truth". We never reward a down-statistic (like an ARC-broken student or premeditor) with Live Meditation.

Motivation

I have been asked: "What was my motivation?"

Well, I was trained to deliver workable technology. I never desired to stop doing that. Yet I was stopped quite effectively by the Cof$ in many ways. One way they stopped me was by declaring me SP. Another by giving me a huge free-loader bill. Yet another way was by demanding that I deliver the tech "their way" (which was so altered from what I knew really worked that I really did not want to have anything to do with it.)

But my real motivation was (and is), that I am an old buddhist that has waited for Maitreya to come and give the next programme to teach to the planetary population to move our civilisation closer to fulfilment of its purpose. From LRH and his out-Ethics church I have been able to learn a few tricks to speed up ones progress on "the Road to Truth". SCN happened to be just what I needed and wanted to forward my basic purposes for existing on this planet.

I never had any "feeling of horror at seeing good tech spoiled²." All I saw was an opportunity for me to move closer towards my own goals and purposes. My whole beingness and personality has been carefully geared to perform what is now being done.

As a kid

Since I was a very small kid I have had a vision that I was only slightly aware of. I knew that one day I would sit and receive people who would come to me to get something. When I was younger I did not understand at all why anybody would come to me at all. Only after I was trained and expelled from the Cof$ have I understood why anybody would come to me at all. Originally all I knew was that some people had a reason to try to get to me, but I had no idea about what or why.

Today, when I have been helped in developing the ideas behind the 3 kingdoms and have established our DUGA group, I can understand what I saw when I was young a lot better. And I understand Hubbard's "Original Formula" (see Tech Dictionary) a lot better.

Today I am (my 1D) a willing servant to my true (1U) goals and purposes. I know today that by serving, my 1D can become happy and it will assist my 1U to also reach happiness.

I am still convinced that every effort to try to teach the DUGA WAY to others by writing only is doomed to failure.

DUGA means "to do" and in Swedish also means "will do" or "proper and adequate". I personally feel that DUGA means KRC and that is the only meaning of the word that matters to me.

New Realities

By Mark Jones, USA

Evolverment as Independents

Through the dreams and agreements we created and shared while in the church for achieving more of our potential and helping others do so, we generated a powerful energy. We believed that all of the actions needed to achieve full OT abilities were laid out, and all we had to do was create the resources to pay our way up the bridge, and then follow the steps. Even if some "wogs" didn't immediately recognize our advanced state and give credence to our certainty that there was only one path; we knew that in time, all but the real Suppressive Persons would see the light and come aboard. It all fit neatly into place, and we were confident that as long as we kept up our stats and our noses clean, we'd ascend. Others, seeing our state, would ultimately fall in line and follow.

When we declared our independence, many of us felt a sense of loss of the camaraderie and group agreements we'd enjoyed in our closed society. While we still had access to the tech, we missed the exhilarating "Wow" we'd experienced from the acknowledgements by our teammates when we climbed a rung in the ladder and became a higher level being. Many who had completed virtually every action on the bridge, but hadn't yet found Nirvana, were left with a "what now", and felt a sense of loneliness. Some considered that the answer lay in picking up the bits and pieces that they may have missed along the way, and are now doing so. Others researched earlier data, such as that on GPMs, and found new and productive applications which hadn't been pursued earlier.

Then there were some, obviously squirrels, who began to explore new concepts and sources of data. Some opened their inquisitive ears to channelling and other approaches which were designed to reach other vibratory levels, and to release suppressed emotions at deeper levels. Others, delved into the discoveries of quantum physics as they related to the human psyche and our perceptions of the universe.

Vibratory frequencies

These latter approaches deal with the understanding and use of vibratory frequencies. The range of these is vast. When we operate within the limited range of frequencies of receptivity of our eyes, ears, nose, skin, etc., our perceptions are very limited. Metaphysicians¹ hypothesized that what we visualize with desire, expectancy and vivid imagination creates future outcomes, as well as those which are manifesting in the present. But what energies and frequencies do we use when we visualize? How does a visualization of a future outcome lead to its manifestation? Why do postulates work some times for some people but not for others?

There are many bands of frequencies outside of those on which our sensory perceptions operate. Those who successfully did the early route one processing (see The Creation of Human Ability, by L. Ron Hubbard) experienced a form of remote viewing. So did many people while running the OT VI drills. In discharging secondaries or engrams we use frequencies in the feeling band, which are quite different from those we use in logic and reasoning. So, likewise are those we use when we dream, imagine or visualize different.

Beings apparently move into different frequency bands when they die or ascend. It appears possible for communciation to be set up between beings who are operating in one frequency band with those in another. Tuning is required on both ends of the line for communication to occur. Some people are more receptive and learn to do this more easily than others. Some are blocked by beliefs that it can't be done, or that anything which can't be sensed with their physical senses is unreal. Yet, some are able to communicate as channels quite easily. As an example, one of the most highly trained and respected Flag Captains was able to accomplish this after reading a book and getting a little coaching over a two week period.

Exploration outside the physical range

Do beings operating in frequency ranges have anything to offer those operating with the human sensory range? Some who have implicitly had faith in LRH's insights as providing all of the data and procedures needed for our evolvment might say no. Others have felt an urge to explore further.

Each person has every right to discover his or her own path to enlightenment. To the degree that these can be shared, some of the sense of camaraderie, commonality of purposes and expansion of viewpoints that we formerly enjoyed may be regained.

Further explorations have revealed to many that learning to use frequencies outside of the physical range is essential for evolvment. What we may have called "our case", or "our shadow", the deeply impeded limitations and negativity that we have, can only be found and dealt with by using frequencies outside of the physical range. Our dreams, the meanings of which are not always clear, and our visualizations provide means of finding and dealing with vital facets of what we may have called our "case". Our Karma is our continuing resolve to ultimately handle our limitations and blockages to full OT or ascending to higher states and abilities to operate on a much wider band of frequencies up to static.

Virtually all of the channelled sources agree that major changes are and will be occurring in the width and range of frequencies of human's receptivity during this decade. The narrowing of the human frequency reception range to its present limited band is being reversed. Over the last millennia, what has been called male energies operating in the frequencies of logic and reason has predominated. This has been expressed as desire to be in control using force as necessary. Now the energies at frequencies which are sometimes given the name of female energies are coming in much more strongly. These relate to creativity, imagination, love and compassion. As a result, reprogramming is occurring in the human psyche to expand its range of receptivity.

Channelled sources confirm what Shamans and many other metaphysicians have maintained for centuries, that the earth is also a living consciousness. The elements of air, fire, water and earth changes are its vehicles of expression and alignment. It too will be experiencing great changes during this period. A conjunction of an alignment of the brightest star Sirius, said to be the entry point of the energies of this universe, are coming into an alignment that has not occurred since 60,000 years ago. The earth has entered a period of cleansing itself using its elements of fire, air, water and earth changes to bring about a higher level of survival and harmony within itself. For some, these may come as disasters, while for others, as a part of a powerful realignment.

... Evolvment — My View¹

By Otto Roos, Holland

I was there during a great part of the times Mark writes about and know that most of the organisational data he mentions is correct. This also applies to large parts of what he says about the achieving, and non achieving, of higher states.

In an earlier article, or in my debrief, I have given examples of my own work as LRH Upper Level and OT Research Auditor. I have been very much in personal contact with that part of Scn which used to be called "Para Scn". Hence was exposed to and experienced a lot of this aspect of research first hand both in its case technical theory and practice.

The (not) missing item

Sure, Mark Jones has not fully attained parts of those states we are inherently capable of achieving, nor has anybody else, INCLUDING LRH! Aleister Crowley, yes, he did go wrong target in his effort to control the "receiving" Mark writes about. But LRH in the beginning (as late as early 1968 that I personally know of) did not! He did know the correct item, and he permitted it to be made known. It was through what HE told me that I could complete the Conditions line-up by writing the LRH approved Flag Order which gave the Top, the Basic, and the Summary of the Conditions, i.e. the infinite item above Power, as CONTROL.²

Conditions

The Flag Order was published once on Flag, but, like a large stack of other O.J. Roos HCOB's, HCO Policy Ltrs and FO's, written for and on behalf of LRH, has undoubtedly been cancelled.

The Conditions and their line-up are exactly the same, i.e. nothing changed except the very top above POWER. The item CONTROL (unmodified) is at that point. This was verbally stated by LRH in February 1968 in Spain, in Valencia or Alicante, on Flag, in the first AO.

LRH poked fun at individuals who were on a figure figure about Power, and who considered that by doing the Conditions they would soon become able to fly their bodies around, etc. He was grinning about the abundance of Hidden Standards which were around on the subject of "OT". He indicated that CONTROL is in fact the item most closely concerned with the application of OT abilities but that the concept of GRADIENT was something we tended to forget in the OT Research Days. (These days and some of the things which were done and the results actually obtained with LRH as Research C/S were, apart from being fun and fascinating, though often on a hit and miss basis, quite extraordinary!⇒

2 I asked Otto to amplify on this – see side panel. Ed.

Thoughts inspired by ...

Some of the experiments and the results might even still be of interest today. Since those days I have never seen the actual OT phenomena experienced back then repeated.)

The formula of CONTROL at that time was basically SCS (Start, Change, Stop), which has since been extended to SCCS, adding "Continue". □

It wasn't only the "receiving" he sought and intended to teach all of us to control, but the item of 8C, so the Total Identification of Native State and Complete Knowingness itself! That alone can lead to the ultimate state of FAITH!

Control/Affinity

As TOTAL CONTROL includes COMPLETE AFFINITY, there is, once total 8C has been achieved, no further barrier of dichotomy/duality to be overcome. At that stage one is no longer at the point of being anything but the potential effect of having to wait to receive from another source the particle of Trust or Faith we ourselves are lacking. The factors of Distance and Energy which inhibit ARC, and which make up the scale of attitudes called AFFINITY, would no longer exist as unwanted persisting barriers to be overcome. In their stead would be the KNOWINGNESS, the CONTROL, the TRUST/FAITH that certain happenings we decided should occur, in fact had already occurred the very moment we decided they should.

An EP which was once assigned

The above would also be the point of CAUSE OVER TIME, which was — and maybe still is on Flag today — the old EP of OT8. In the old OT days, i.e. the days when a lot of research in "OT phenomena" was done on the Flag ship and ashore by LRH personally, and by the research auditors under his direct Case Supervision in Las Palmas, Spain, the Mediterranean, Corfu, Ibiza, and Corsica, 1967/8, experience was gathered, and subjective realities obtained in and with a lot of OT phenomena and data.

The universe of metaphysics

This has everything to do with the universe of metaphysics mentioned by Mark. I was there when John McMaster (case supervised by LRH) actually practised levitation (and broke his toe when he came crashing down to earth!) We did a lot of these things, some of which were ordered by LRH to be published (John Attack still has a copy of the Flag Magazine, describing some of the experiments and results we were involved in at that time.)

It certainly made "OT" very real. These auditing experiments did more to create new realities than anything else I ever noticed, or experienced.

Hence I cannot possibly see how anyone could say that LRH, or the technology, was lacking in this realm, or in its allied field of creating new spiritual realities. "Regaining earlier lost realities, which exceed the norm", would be a far more accurate description!

Results

The "end level", as it was seen in those early S.O. days of OT research, was called "OT8". It had designated as its EP, "CAUSE OVER TIME".

In these beginning days of OT research into Applied OT Abilities we continued to strand on something "mysterious", later known as the NOTS and OT8 Banks. These kept on "getting in the way". The early Class 10-12 research started to dissolve these Banks, without our really being aware of that fact at that time! The LRH NOTS development fully resolved the first lot of these Banks in the late 70's. The contents and the steps to blow the subsequent set of Banks, run (as far as that was possible back then) in research many years earlier, have, as far as I'm aware, not been published. Those Banks were later "re-discovered".

Assigned awareness levels

The old CAUSE OVER TIME, assigned as their EP, however, is not a fully correct reflection of the true state of affairs. Such a level of CAUSE, although I have once attested to it, has, as far as I know, not yet been achieved by anyone. Although it was called that, it couldn't possibly have been the true EP of the old time OT8, no matter what my considerations about it were at the time, or whatever I decided at a later stage upon having rerun the level after SOLO NOTS completion! Having myself experienced, and on occasion as C/S or auditor seen the state experienced by others, I have not seen this condition achieved intentionally and at will by anyone ever. This does not mean that it never will be. I'm convinced that one day, by the continued use of IN BASICS, it will be. This then would mean having reached the Condition of TIMELESSNESS (at will!) and the Case State of CAUSE OVER TIME!

Thoughts inspired by ...

The metaphysical

One can't just say that the metaphysical received no attention from LRH. This aspect, especially in personal discussions, was very important to him, but he did not want to publicly state too much about these subjects, like also the 8th Dynamic, as he did not want to put something there which could be (mis)construed as LRH "data" and as such act as an Eval for others.

I completely disagree with Mark when he talks about the "limited range explored by LRH". I have had many discussions with LRH and cannot say that his range was "limited". In fact, I was always amazed about the fantastic scope of his knowledge and his unbelievable mastery of WORDS!

In an earlier IVy I wrote some notes about LRH in his different hats. That, once an item or area had caught his attention, he wasn't thorough in his investigation, is not something I ever noticed or wrote.

That he did not publish many items which should be left to individuals themselves to discover is something which as Tech Man I'm glad about. That many of the things he knew as a being weren't written down to be studied by others is very clear and obvious. He didn't want to evaluate what students and pc's should discover in person. At the same time he did give us the Tech to discover these very same things for and by ourselves, like he also did for himself, as could be seen in his own Solo Folders!

Items of a more esoteric nature frequently deal with those things which belong purely, innately to ourselves, like for example the realities and abilities we regain. This is regardless the later use we may put those items to. Most of the data discovered and published by LRH seeks to restore SELF determinism. Hence he preached for others to discover their own reality. That a lot of this changed in later years does not alter the fact that the basic data he published was dedicated to the discovery of Life and its Laws by people (for) THEMSELVES!

Misused data

LRH and very advanced tech training was very much aware of the matter of 8C. If the C of S'es wrong gones¹ would have to be defined in a few words, this could be done with "harmful 8C". The later years saw a gradual disintegration of ARC and the arrival of a KNOWING ABOUT-NESS, which was not pursued to its ultimate goal of KNOWINGNESS, but which became DRAMATISED instead, to ENFORCED "CONTROL".

The user is not the tech

A lot of the above may or may not be widely known, who can say? But it is not good practice to judge our science on its MISAPPLICATIONS, regardless of WHO misapplied it. Even the source of the discovery of the Scn data and its main relay point, LRH, was just as subject to its demands as we all are!

And he too was subject to making mistakes in its application. The running and "planning" of the Class VIII course ("we can make top auditors in 3 weeks!") was an example of one of the mistakes mentioned!

Such mistakes were usually followed by a near endless amount of unusual "solutions", none of them addressing the basic problem. Others were very often blamed for the wrong gones! Apart from being the originator of this Course, I was also its first Ship's Org (then the "Apollo") Graduate, and really know all about the over-

1 A wrong gone is an action which was not correctly completed but which went wrong due to out planning, out execution, or both.

Thoughts inspired by ...

boards from very personal experience! The Class VIII goals of faultless duplication were, outside Flag, never realised!

We All Misused the Data

Sure, the threats, etc, it is all true. But Ron, and therefore Sen, did basically know the mistake of compulsive "control". Already some of the oldest data talks about a most senior of qualities, something which squarely opposes compulsive control, i.e. the quality of FAITH!

That reactive effort at a later stage resulted in the conditions Mark writes about, does not change the fact that much esoteric data about love, faith, loyalty, allegiance, etc, did exist in the philosophy, and that much of it was used (especially ARC and TRUST in the old days!).

All the "Nazi trial" stuff Mark mentions, sure, it happened, I've personally experienced and undergone it, in fact more than most. I've seen it. But so what! None of it makes the Tech and its Philosophy any the less valid. So, it has been misused, misapplied, yet none of this invalidates it. The subject should not be mis-identified with those who misused and misapplied it — WHICH IS ALL OF US!

Even Mark's suggestion that "LRH apparently left this life disillusioned and bitter" has nothing to do with the validity of his legacy. Shakespeare already knew, "there never was a philosopher endureth toothache patiently"! The data is not the man. Its misapplication is not the data.

Disillusion overcome (faith restored!)

Mark and another old friend of mine he mentions, Hanna Whitfield, and many others did become disillusioned. Yet, I'm sure, most of the old SO members who went through this and who survived, ended up using our own down turn as a challenge to continue working at the goal they had originally come into Sen with. They were working at obtaining Freedom for themselves and others then, they are still working at it today, and they are still, each to the extent he is capable, using the very things they got from LRH. This includes myself, this includes Mark, this includes all my old friends, and, I'm sure, most of the readers of IVy!

Is our affinity down?

By Antony A Phillips, Denmark

A friend rang, very angry. So-and-so was auditing X action, and didn't he know that this was very harmful according to the red volumes when the pc hadn't finished Y action? Could he have the auditor's phone number? We agreed that I would speak to the auditor. This concerned a training group, otherwise I suppose details of the auditing would not have gone so far. So I told the leader of the group concerned.

Result was that my friend was told to mind his own business (it was put much more politely).

Next day he rang me. I was not to tell the auditor. He was not angry this time. In fact he said he had had a number of cognitions concerning the matter, and told me at length.

He was not responsible for field auditing generally. When we split from the church we should have established an ethics officer and other posts, but now it was too late. We who split from the church had affinity for each other, based on church times, but we had no common reality. So apart from meeting on social occasions it was best not to contact each other.

I don't agree. We do disagree on some things, but we have broad goals and many basics in common. The new freedom we have is a challenge. Now we can do much more.

We should increase communication, with understanding of how ARC works. We should be inventive. In present time. Not just repeating last year's (or the church's) actions. We should be looking for new ways to communicate with colleagues. Ways which suit the individual, and the individual occasion.

Communication is the pay of life!

A View from the Bridge

By Eric Townsend, England

Chapter Four¹

The Rehabilitation of a Spirit

In Scientology we describe a spirit as a THETAN. Probably the most readily identifiable meaning for both terms given in the Technical Dictionary is 'the awareness of awareness unit'. A thetan who is both aware of being a spirit and who is operating from that spiritual viewpoint is described as an OPERATING THETAN. This is usually shortened to the letters OT. Because the auditing and training levels above Clear on the Bridge are referred to as the 'OT levels', it is assumed that one is not capable of operating as a thetan, as an OT, until one has completed the OT levels.

This is an understandable misapprehension. The reality is that every being who is running a human body is capable of being OT. Most human beings are at some time aware of their spiritual capacities. There have of course been a few extraordinary beings who have appeared in human bodies, in particular those we know of as religious teachers and philosophers. Some were canonised as saints and others were even turned into gods. They were probably natural operating thetans who knew they were exterior to their bodies and who could take a broader view of the MEST universe from that external position. There probably have been many more than have been acknowledged in a spiritual context. Probably their number includes many great artists, inventors and other innovators.

At a more mundane level, an athlete who gives a super-human performance could be said to be operating as a thetan at that time. Similarly an artist or performer who transcends normal human capacities to achieve something outstanding could be said at that time to be operating as a thetan. Likewise an ordinary person who responds to a crisis with courage or determination beyond normal human expectation can be said to have operated as a thetan on that occasion. What happens here probably is that the being exteriorises from all the normal considerations of being a human and reviews the situation from the much wider perception that is available to a spirit. From that viewpoint, the being can determine and implement a course of action which produces a super-human result. The battle to achieve and repeat this is the constant struggle of musicians, artists and writers.

While all of us are capable of this to some extent, and a few people naturally operate at this level most of the time, the difficulty for all of us is maintaining stability. The goal of the OT levels is to help someone to achieve the state of operating as a thetan all the time, with no possibility of being shaken from that state by the kind of setbacks that in the past have overwhelmed him and caused him to lose these spiritual identity and capacities.

Body problems

The first and most obvious zone of difficulties that have reduced a spirit's awareness and abilities are those that relate to the body he is currently involved with. These difficulties can be observed in Aberrated Behaviour. This is caused by aberrated mental conclusions and responses. The body mirrors these aberrations in its own physical condition. The degree of aberration in this relationship depends on the experience and abilities of the thetan and body combination, mostly during this lifetime. This is the area dealt with by Dianetics and discussed in the previous chapter.

The thetan himself has a condition which is based on his own bank of experience and conclusions over a period much longer than one body lifetime. The thetan brings his own expectations of life and living in a body to his combination with a particular body. We measure the condition of the combined thetan, mind and body by means of the TONE SCALE. This scale 'plots the descending spiral of life from full vitality and consciousness' (Technical Dictionary, and Self-Analysis p.37). The observable point on the Tone Scale at which a person is operating is a combination of the positions occupied by the thetan and body. It is worth restating that the thetan and body each have their own separate position on the Tone Scale. As combined body-thetan they occupy a third position on the Tone Scale. The usual pattern for the body is that it starts high on the Tone Scale as a child and then starts to drift down with the passing of maturity and accumulation of physical damage. The thetan's position on the Scale will combine to pull the body up or down the Tone Scale.

It will be seen therefore that although the experiences of body and reactive mind have to be handled by Dianetics, so do the experiences and conclusions of the thetan, since this is what governs his position on the Tone Scale. Just because we encounter the body as the first and most visible indication of the condition of the combination, that does not mean we can or should handle the body condition first. The hazards of trying to deal exclusively with the body as the first action, were dealt with in the last chapter, and are the reason why the Scientology Grades now appear before Dianetics on the Bridge. The Scientology Grades are the means of relieving the thetan from some of the effects of his experiences and thus raising him on the Tone Scale and to some extent rehabilitating him as an operating thetan.

You may well ask — How is it possible for a thetan without a body to have a bank? If a thetan doesn't have a mind, how can it have a reactive mind? If it doesn't have a reactive mind, how can it have engrams? So how does it form a bank?

These are entirely valid questions. In considering a thetan we have moved out of the MEST universe. For our purposes here, it is true to say a thetan is a being without mass who you cannot subject to physical pain. Physical pain is one of the essential requirements of an Engram. A thetan can't get physically ill and you can't kill him or in any physical sense knock him unconscious. He is in the theta universe, the universe of thought. The thetan's bank contains conclusions, decisions and postulates. Many of them are harmless but others cause him difficulty but he can't get to his earlier memories to see how and why he formed them.

It is only according to the mechanisms of thought that a thetan can become hung up. The most logical way to look at the major mechanisms, and give them adequate explanation, is to go through the relevant steps of the Bridge. These are the Scientology Grades which in 1981 were relocated before Dianetics and Clear on the Bridge. This was done to rehabilitate the basic abilities of thetan before attacking the reactive mind, so he could go Clear.

Importance of memory

The first of these Grades or Levels is called ARC Straightwire. The purpose of this is to put the thetan back in contact with his own memory bank. This is not in contact with the reactive mind, which is part of the body mind, but with thetan's own personal memory bank.

So what is the mechanism we are dealing with here that can hang-up a thetan? To answer this we need to remind ourselves that the thetan was on a downward spiral. First he lost his abilities as a powerful thetan. Then he lost his memory of losing those abilities and then lost his awareness that he ever had those abilities. At the same time as losing his memory of his experiences he also lost his identity.

We can see the same process even in the human environment. A person becomes what he is by what he has experienced. We say that experience builds a person's character. Loss of memory is very disorienting to a person because he doesn't know what he has experienced and how that would cause him to behave in particular circumstances. He feels like a baby again.

A thetan in the theta universe doesn't have a body to identify himself. He draws his identity and existence solely from his experience. So, for a thetan loss of memory is even more serious. By losing his memory he has lost his experiences and thus his identity. So now he is in a deteriorating state of inability with no knowledge that things were ever any different. The next step down is to lose what little certainty that he still has that he exists at all.

Straightwire

The processes at the ARC Straightwire level include some repetitive processes to rehabilitate calling up thoughts and memories quickly and randomly. The bulk of this level however consists of the processes laid out in the book called Self-Analysis. In these processes the thetan is asked to recall specific incidents. He is also required to find a specified PERCEPTICS, such as smell, colour, sound, etc. These Perceptics are available because they are part of experiences he had with a body. He is then asked to get an earlier similar incident and finally get the earliest incident he can. He may or may not go into previous lives to get the incidents. This will depend on his confront level and whether he feels secure enough to confront the fact that he has had previous lives.

But why is it called ARC Straightwire you may ask. The definition of ARC is familiar to most people who have studied any Scientology but probably the most relevant definition from the Technical Dictionary is number 4 in the 1975 edition: 'the triagonal manifestation of theta each aspect affecting the other two'. Straightwire also has a number of definitions which you should look at. The best summary definition for this purpose is to say it is stringing a line from the 'T' in present time directly to some incident in the standard memory bank without any detours.

The aim of ARC Straightwire is to get the thetan to a state called Recall Release. This has been achieved when he, the thetan, knows that he can recontact his own memory bank, that he has turned round in relation to his deteriorating awareness and abilities, and that as a result he will not get any worse.

Grades and levels

Before dealing with next 'GRADE' or 'LEVEL' it is desirable to distinguish these two different terms. A Grade applies to a PC in this context. The PC is said to have completed a particular Grade or all the Grades. A Level applies to the Auditor. The Auditor who takes the PC through a particular Grade is said to be trained to deliver that Level or all the Levels. There is sometimes confused use of the two terms, particularly as sometimes a pair of people train on each Level and then and co-audit (audit each other) on that Grade. In the context we are discussing at the moment it is more accurate to refer to them as Grades.

Communication

The next Grade deals with the subject of COMMUNICATION. This subject always comes up very early in ones involvement with Scientology. Some people wonder what all the fuss is about and become impatient with the emphasis given to communication skills. This is however to look at the subject from a human point of view. Human beings can get by with a fairly rudimentary level of communication, particularly if their lives are following well recognised patterns of behaviour in our society. Because they get through most days with no major misunderstandings or disasters, they consider that their communication skills are fine. As a human being they may be, but as a thetan this is probably not the case.

A thetan establishes his identity by his ability to communicate with those around him and his environment. Our society is geared to provide human beings with a standard inflow of safe and predictable communication about work, running a household, body care, being entertained and bringing up children. There are established social patterns for doing all these things and all a good citizen is required to do is to follow them. If a human or a thetan wishes to originate a communication that differs from these social norms, then it will make major demands on their communication skills. A thetan who cannot communicate his own views about his environment and his condition is forced back into accepting the generally accepted view of the norm for himself or becoming an outcast.

So what hangs up a thetan in relation to communication? Firstly there are communication failures that he has experienced in the past. Each of these cause him to doubt his ability to communicate. There is a second factor which limits the ability of a thetan to communicate. He may not know, because he has forgotten, how to communicate. This is why the Communication Course in its various forms is such an important early action in Scientology. Although the TRAINING ROUTINES, usually referred to as TRs, were originally developed for training auditors, it was found highly beneficial to get the PC to do some TRs, usually in the form of a Communication Course, before they started on his auditing.

The increased awareness achieved by a person doing their first Communication Course is often amazing. The difficulty that the PC has, is that he can rarely express in words what he has perceived and can easily invalidate those gains if he does not do anything to consolidate and advance his progress.

Let us look at the possible reasons for the continuing success of this course. Firstly the act of confronting another person as a thetan, either with eyes open or shut, brings about an awareness to the person, as a thetan, of what he actually is. The body resistance that has to be overcome also helps the thetan to differentiate himself from his body. Secondly, in the spoken drills the thetan re-experiences the benefits of completing communication cycles. This restores to him a belief that he is capable of communicating effectively. The extent that a thetan is able to build on and consolidate these gains will depend on the co-operation he can get from his body and mind.

Because people mostly seem to be able to get what they need to survive at a human level, it is assumed that communication is proceeding satisfactorily. For a thetan however, communication is all he has to establish his existence and to interact with whatever environment or universe the thetan chooses to be in. A thetan is without location or form unless he chooses to be somewhere and take a form with which to interact with that environment. The first stage is to locate. This can only be done by putting out communication lines to that environment.

Grade 0

In auditing on this Grade, known as Grade 0 or Grade Zero, the PC runs auditing processes dealing with communication blocks and difficulties. These include looking at times when communication went well and times when it went badly and also finding positions from which it would be alright to communicate. The PC also runs processes about his communication to individuals or categories of people with whom he has had difficulty. So if the PC has had difficulty talking to policemen, the opposite sex or his Auntie Mabel, these can all come up on this Grade. Similarly the PC may have attention on certain subjects about which he cannot communicate and these may also come up on this Grade. Whether any particular person or subject comes up or not will depend on whether the meter shows that it is charged and ready to run.

There is usually a strong correlation between charge and PC interest. However it is not always true that what the PC is interested in before the session is actually what is holding any charge. It is commonplace for the PC to be astonished to find that the item that is holding charge is one he considered of no importance.

As in all Scientology programmes, the processes on this Grade are arranged on a gradient so that the PC moves from confronting minor difficulties in this area to greater ones until at some point the PC reaches the END PHENOMENA for this Grade. The End Phenomena are the combined indicators that the PC has completed a process or Grade. In the case of a Grade, the End Phenomena is when the PC has regained an ABILITY. On this Grade the ability regained is to freely communicate with anyone on any subject.

This is not the only ability to be rehabilitated. To out-flow communication is only one of four FLOWS that the thetan is involved in. He also rehabilitates his willingness to accept communication from others on any subject without resistance. He also has the ability to allow others to communicate to each other without any need to interfere. Fourthly he no longer resists communication from himself. This flow is the one that causes understandable confusion. It may mean different things at different points on the Bridge and that will become clear as you read this book. At this point it may be best to limit ourselves to looking at the communication that goes on between the thetan and the body. The thetan and body are in constant communication and at times this communication line can get very confused and even stormy. The ability and willingness to communicate freely with oneself thus reduces much resistance and tension within the thetan-mind-body combination.

The state achieved at the end of the Grade is known as Communication Release. So what has been achieved by the PC doing Grade Zero? The enormous amount of data in the thetan bank to do with communication difficulties has not all been looked at or erased. What has been looked at however are more recent thoughts, conclusions, and decisions relating to communication difficulties and how to handle them. These will have been produced by recent experiences, usually in this lifetime, and some of these experiences may have been looked at by means of Straightwire during these processes. The effect of looking at them by this means is to achieve their KEY-OUT. As we saw in Dianetics, Key-Out is different from ERASURE because Key-Out causes the material to move away and cease to bother the PC at that time. The reason that it will only key-out is that there will be earlier material going back into earlier lifetimes. Rather than disturb this, it is more efficient to go for key-outs at this stage because much of the charge attached to this material will disappear on the achievement of Clear.

One other result will probably have been achieved for the first time for many PCs during this Grade. This is the first conscious awareness of themselves as a thetan or spirit. This is like discovering that there is another person involved in your life who you didn't know was there but who at the same time is very familiar. As an auditor, it is a wonderful privilege to be present at these beginnings of reawakening, at the rebirth of a Thetan!

In the following chapters we will be looking at the the areas that need to be addressed to rehabilitate the abilities of our PC as a thetan.

Old times ...

By Doro Richter, Germany

Once in a while I run into some people, who joined the Free Zone after the big Exodus in the early eighties, and who want to know some data about the history of independent Scientology. It seems that these data are harder to get every year. Many old-timers are still keeping the data, but there are also many who just threw them away. But fortunately the data are still around and they are still wanted.

So we decided to take some of the data, put them together, and made them available for the public in book form. We called it the "ROOTS" project. It is incomplete, since we have used only Captain Bill, OTC and Ron's Org as sources so far. There has been, and still is, much more going on in the Free Zone than in these groups. My idea is to get a timetrack — as complete as possible — of the Independent Movement of Free Scientologists, which shows what has been going on since 1982 up to PT.

This "time track" should not be commentaries, but preferably should be made up from all kinds of data such as lectures, debriefs, letters, magazines, newsletters etc. And it should be available for all independents.

If you want to help with this project, please get in touch with me, Doro Richter, Friedlebenstr. 4 D-60433 Frankfurt/Main, Fax 069/51 83 69

The book Roots of the OTC is obtainable from: A. Groothuis, 35 Lingfield Road, East Grinstead, West Sussex England. Price is DM 80.- or equivalent in £ sterling or US$, outside of Europe there is an extra 20 DM for postage. We hope to write a review of the book in a future issue. Ed.

Continuous creation

By Antony A Phillips, Denmark

Many things in scn excited me. One of the early ones was the cycle of action: create, survive, destroy. And again in the 50's the exciting idea was put forth that this was only an apparent cycle. The true cycle of action is described in Fundamentals of Thought. What struck home to me was that you could not create something and expect it automatically to survive. If you didn't continuously create its existence it would succumb.

True the continuous creation after the initial creation was not as strenuous. Having built a house (created it), one occasionally painted it and made sure necessary small repairs were made. Also one used the vacuum cleaner now and then.

A marriage took some creating. But if one did not make some smaller effort to continue creating it, the result, in effect, was no marriage.

The group was continuously created for us by an organisation, which later called itself a church. Some of us helped by working up to 24 hours a day, other by paying fees. That organisation restricted our freedom. We left it. Some never went into the trap.

So who is continuously creating the group now? You and I. We no longer get glossy magazines about our group sent for free. We pay for IVy, The Free Spirit, etc. And many help with writing, typing, proofing, printing, distributing, and passing on the good news that these magazines exist. A pat on the back to all. Well done.

Once (in the 50's) the org arranged conferences, and it still arranges get togethers. Now we have freedom to do those things ourselves, the way we want it. Aren't we lucky! Another back pat.

Letter from Tools for Thought

The Insight Project: Uncovering the Roots of Human Nature

Irene Mumford's original work on Dianasis was inspired by scientology principles; in particular, the Axioms and the GPM tech of the early 60s, and the phenomena of the Between Lives Implant. Through application of Dianasis, however, Irene discovered many principles which were not contained within scientology, and on the upper Parts of Dianasis, she found that even the scientology principles needed substantial revision.

Since Irene's death, her son Gregory Mitchell has re-launched the subject under a new title — The Insight Project — and has begun to incorporate Irene's later thinking into revised materials, that are both more effective and better presented and explained.

The Project has also become part of a system of personal development which has a much wider technical base than that of scientology. The Mental Development System — the result of 25 years' research — incorporates those techniques that have been proven to be the most valuable, drawn world-wide from psychologies and applied philosophies, both past and present. It is an ever-growing and open system, and because its structure is soundly based, the whole is much greater than the sum of its parts.

The Mental Development System provides an ideal route onto The Insight Project, and its technologies also provide a solution to the problems which scientologists experience in their spiritual development, due to past misguided conditioning within the scientology system.

Our new technology — incorporating the Bilateral Meter — uncovers the very roots of human nature, that hold the spiritual being in a dilemma of identity, to which he has previously succumbed. These roots lead to past lives, human genetics, the trauma of infancy and ever-present cultural conditioning. All must be reliably handled, before the spiritual path is realistically available to follow.

Letter from Ron's Org

What is Ron's Org and who is Ron's Org?

R.O.N.S.

That stands for Ron's Organization and Network for Standard Technology. It got that name when an alternative was obviously being established in 1983/1984 in Europe by Capt. Bill Robertson. Captain Bill was the leader of it and brought people together who wanted an alternative when their bridge to freedom was blocked for them within the Church.

Lectures and talks began in October 1984, which is the official date when Ron's Org started. We did not start with a building or staff, nor a fully equipped set-up. We had individuals willing to participate — making it possible to have an alternative available. Captain Bill, having worked with LRH closely for many years, was asked if he would stay around in Europe for some time and give us his knowledge of what he had been trained on by LRH. So in these earlier years until 1991, Captain Bill researched the Ron's Org Bridge, as it is called now. Its chart, what can be delivered, is in the "Teegeack" book.

Individuals talked about it to friends — around Europe, and as far away as America, New Zealand, Australia, South America and Mexico — and that resulted in trained field auditors wanting to have the consultation and training — talks with Captain Bill and practical skill applications — so letters started to pour in and also many trainees, wanting the knowledge and skills and wanting to use them for themselves and then to help others.

Who is Ron's Org? It's those field auditors that had the great chance to learn the technical developments done by Captain Bill Robertson during the earlier years. These representatives are spread widely around in Switzerland, Austria, New Zealand, Germany, Sweden, America, Australia, Mexico, South America, Portugal, Spain, France...

For an introduction read the first lectures by Captain Bill Robertson opening the Ron's Org (the first lectures are the "Tech Briefings" No. 1 — 3). They are available, and anyone wishing further information on Ron's Org, please write to:

You're a Thetan, Too

Jim Burtles, England

"Tell me Thetan¹, if you're so bloody clever
How come you don't live forever?"

"Well, young man, I think you've guessed,
What I seem to be is only MEST²."

"My spirit is the part that knows, and leaves this body when it goes.
I'll return again, as a little one,
as I always have, since time begun."

"Thetan, I do find that hard to swallow.
You say there's another life to follow?"
"Of course, I doubted once, just like you Before I came to know it to be true."

"You and I are very much the same.
This life on Earth is just another game, complete with rules and some prizes too.
I am a thetan; but then so are you!"

1 Thetan — The traditional symbol for thought or spirit is the Greek letter, theta, θ. A Thetan is the individual himself.

2 MEST — Abbreviation for Mass, Energy, Space and Time which are the material elements of the physical universe.
